To Whom It May Concern,

It is my great pleasure to recommend Mohd Arshil as a student of exceptional curiosity, resilience, and character. I have known him since his early school years, and I've had the rare opportunity to watch him grow from a bright, observant child into a passionate learner who constantly asks meaningful questions — often beyond the scope of the classroom.

In my science class, he has demonstrated a unique ability to connect textbook knowledge to real-world problems. One project that stands out is his prototype for a "Mosquito Risk Calculator" — a thoughtful response to rising concerns about mosquito-borne diseases. Even though it was a prototype, the level of reasoning, design, and environmental awareness behind it showed a level of maturity beyond his age. He was not just trying to build something — he wanted to solve a problem.

He is never afraid to challenge concepts, ask deeper questions, and explore ideas that are not part of the curriculum. This spirit of inquiry, combined with his calm humility, makes him a standout learner. He often helps his peers understand difficult scientific concepts in simple terms and is genuinely invested in their learning as well.

Arshil embodies the kind of science student who reminds teachers why we teach — a student who is not driven by marks alone, but by meaning. I am confident he will excel in any academic or research environment, and I strongly recommend him without any hesitation.

Best regards,
